Creative ideas

I have put together a few ideas for creative time at home and some websites for practising skills and to learn about art culture. I will also be assigning some activities through SeeSaw. Parents all of these options are for you to choose from at your discretion.

- ❖ Creative Art Competition – On the back of this sheet is a competition with the theme ‘Why do you love your brain?’
- ❖ Make your own paintbrushes. Find various grasses from the garden or park and tie to a stick using a rubber band. Then experiment with food dye and water if you don’t have paints.
- ❖ Construction – build sculptures using old boxes and random objects you can find in your house.
- ❖ Collage – cut out pictures from magazines or catalogues to create a picture.
- ❖ Google Arts & Culture website – Here you can explore galleries and exhibitions from all over the world. Find artists, themes, collections, movements and historical figures/events. If you click onto the Experiments tab there is some really cool interactive learning.

Remember to be forced to think creatively is an opportunity and be mindful with the amount of time spent on devices. – Miss de Bruyn
